

Vehicle Acquisition and Leasing

GSA — Your Source For Emergency Vehicles

GSA has a variety of vehicles and related products to assist customer agencies in accomplishing their daily missions. GSA can also provide critical support during disasters or national emergencies.

We can help agencies obtain OEM-certified law enforcement vehicles directly from the vehicle manufacturer. GSA provides vehicles for police pursuit, as well as support vehicles for law enforcement.

GSA's Vehicular Multiple Award Schedule (VMAS) 23 V has a wide variety of accessories to outfit your vehicle. We offer the following under special item number (SIN) 025-101:

- Law enforcement emergency signal systems consisting of sirens, light bars, spot and flood lights, beacon warning devices, PA speakers and system and control consoles
- Law enforcement vehicle barriers and shields, interior rollover protection vehicle restraint systems
- Security systems
- Mounted video equipment

Also available is a wide range of fire fighting vehicles under SIN 618-01. Fire fighting vehicles and accessories include:

- Aerial/ladder and/or platform
- Aircraft rescue and fire fighting
- Crash trucks
- Brush/wildland
- Pumpers, tankers and/or pumper tankers
- Rescue/hazmats
- Fire fighting trailers

Custom fire fighting chassis and fire fighting vehicle glider kits are available under SIN 618-03.

Wildland fire fighting vehicle bodies to be mounted on Government-provided chassis are covered under SIN 618-04.

Command centers are available under SIN 618-01. These command centers can serve as a hub for communications during emergency situations such as bomb threats, demonstrations, fires or natural disasters. They can also be used to conduct strategy meetings and other tactical operations.

Partner with Us!

Our engineering division can design specialized vehicles and address technical questions. Contact us early in your planning for the acquisition of your customized vehicle.

For more information on any of our vehicle programs, contact Customer CARE on (703) 308-CARS or visit us on-line at: fss.gsa.gov/vehicles/buying.

New Awards Under Schedule 23 V

GSA Automotive has brush cutters available under Multiple Award Schedule (VMAS) 23 V, special item number (SIN) 271-101.

This equipment is mainly used for grounds maintenance and specialty applications, such as site preparation, fertilizer spreading, ash hauling, stump hauling, brush cutting and land clearing.

Federal Supply Schedule 23 V also has various compact tractors under SIN 271-101. These tractors are multi-purpose, multi-season vehicles with a narrow design to provide versatility. The vehicles are used mainly for property maintenance, landscaping, and for use around vineyards and plantations. They are ideal for use in wooded areas.

Most models have a full range of available optional attachments to help maximize the vehicles' performance.

For additional information on GSA Automotives' federal supply schedules, visit GSA's Schedules E-Library at: fss.gsa.gov/elibrary or contact GSA Automotive on (703) 308-CARS or on-line at: fss.gsa.gov/vehicles/buying.

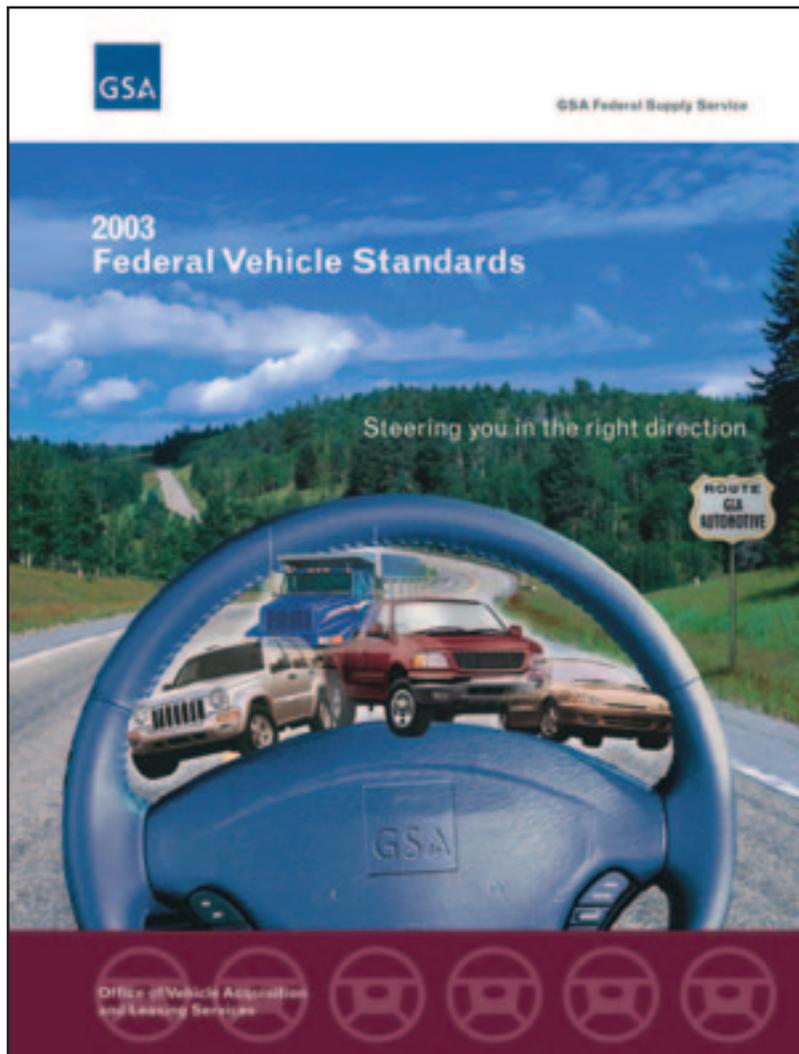

2003 Federal Vehicle Standards

GSA Automotives' 2003 Federal Vehicle Standards are now available. If you have not already received your copy, you can contact GSA's Centralized Mail List Service (CMLS) on (817) 334-5215 and request code: AUTO-0001.

The Federal Vehicle Standards will also be available on CD-ROM upon request from GSA Automotive on (703) 308-CARS or you can download it from our web site at:

fss.gsa.gov/vehicles/buying.

The 2003 edition of the Federal Vehicle Standards will be in a 3-hole punched, loose-leaf format in lieu of a bound booklet. Therefore, once you receive your copy, you will need a 2-inch binder to place it in for convenience and easy access.

Austin Air
for life.

Feel the difference.

On average the air we breathe indoors is two to five times more polluted than the air outside and in certain cases it can be significantly higher than that. Chemicals, gasses, odors, mold spores, dust mites, particulate matter, volatile organic compounds, ozone, carbon monoxide, formaldehyde, the list is seemingly endless but it all boils down to one thing. It is bad for your health.

Indoor air quality is a health problem in a home or at the office. The problem exists because the air we breathe indoors is polluted. The pollution comes from a myriad of sources. Toxins, pollutants, noxious substances, they are all around us, emitted by everything from rugs to perfume, from printers to furniture, from an HVAC systems to the cleaning solutions used to keep things clean – and of course – there is the air outside.

Short-term symptoms are things like fatigue, headaches, itchy eyes, raspy throat, and nasal congestion. The long-term health effects include such things as asthma, emphysema, bronchitis or even limited reproductive function or shorter life expectancy.

Breathing clean air is the healthiest and most productive thing you can do for yourself. It will make your immune system stronger and that will make you feel better because you will be better. You will have eliminated a whole lot of stuff that is just not good for you.

Austin Air cleaners make what Mother Nature wants us to breathe - clean air.

Meet Debbie Sommer. Totally committed to her job. Totally deaf and blind.

When you see a SKILCRAFT easel at your next meeting, think of Debbie. Chances are, she assembled it. For sixteen years, Debbie has developed her skills at the Seattle Lighthouse for the Blind—one of the many National Industries for the Blind (NIB) associated agencies that provides an array of SKILCRAFT and other JWOD products and services for the federal government. From operating call centers to making cleaning and office supplies, motivated employees like Debbie are working hard, delivering quality, value and convenience to our customers.

Debbie Sommer: One of the nearly 5,000 people who are blind that National Industries for the Blind and its associated agencies employ across America—people who make products and provide services that make a difference.
